Consileon Polska is supporting femory GmbH & Co. KG in development, project management and IT consultancy.

femory provides a web service for uploading and organizing data (photos, videos, audios), creating printable and online photo products like photo albums, slideshows, posters etc. and sharing them in a community. Since 2009 Consileon Polska has been working for femory GmbH & Co. KG especially in developing and maintaining the backend of the rich internet application and server architecture for the femory webapplication, including also management of release and deployment processes.

We can highly recommend Consileon Polska as a reliable und dedicated business partner.

During our cooperation, Consileon Polska has shown great technical skills in preparing server- architecture, developing architecture design and providing completed solutions based on concept. The quality of the results has always been excellent and was kept on a high standard through steady testing and maintenance. With the adoption of advanced technologies and tools like Ruby on Rails, Facebook, Multimedia and git, Consileon Polska showed their capability of providing up-to-date solutions.

Consileon Polska also offered very good abilities for a long time project support including constantly knowledge transfers and refactoring of software. Meanwhile the high flexibility of the team and their agile development methods also ensured a quick adaption of short-termed changes in concepts and requirements.

Additionally, the work with Consileon Polska has always been a pleasure regarding working climate. The team managed to operate excellently in a multi cultural environment, in near shore as well as on site when requested. Their capability of responding to problems quickly and meeting tight deadlines also showed the commitment of the team to work and guaranteed a fluent workflow.

We thank Consileon Polska for their support, which has always been very helpful to us, and look forward to further successful cooperation.
